

All living things (organisms), are made of cells. Some are only made of a single cell, for example, bacteria. A person is made up of millions of cells joined together.

Plant and animal cells

Cells have smaller structures inside them, called components, that each have an important function.

All living things (organisms), are made of cells. Some are only made of a single cell, for example, bacteria. A person is made up of millions of cells joined together.

Plant and animal cells

Cells have smaller structures inside them, called components, that each have an important function.

