Job title: Fingerprint Officer

Job title: Fingerprint Officer	Fingerprint officers check and compare fingerprints taken from crime scenes.
Entry requirements:	University:
	You could give yourself an advantage by doing a relevant degree in:
	forensic science
	criminology
	applied science
	chemistry
	<ul> <li>biology</li> </ul>
	Entry requirements
	You'll usually need:
	<ul> <li>2 to 3 A levels for a degree</li> </ul>
	Direct Application:
	Each police service sets its own entry requirements, but to start as a trainee fingerprint officer you'll find it useful to have:
	<ul> <li>5 GCSEs at grades 9 to 4 (A* to C) including maths, English and a science subject</li> </ul>
	A levels or equivalent qualifications
	<ul> <li>experience of working in the police, analytical work or work involving attention to detail</li> </ul>
	Police services will carry out checks into your background and employment history. This might also include checking on your close family members.
Skills required:	You'll need:
	<ul> <li>to be thorough and pay attention to detail</li> </ul>
	<ul> <li>patience and the ability to remain calm in stressful situations</li> </ul>
	<ul> <li>the ability to accept criticism and work well under pressure</li> </ul>
	<ul> <li>knowledge of public safety and security</li> </ul>
	<ul> <li>customer service skills</li> </ul>
	<ul> <li>to be flexible and open to change</li> </ul>
	<ul> <li>the ability to work on your own</li> </ul>
	<ul> <li>legal knowledge including court procedures and government regulations</li> </ul>
	<ul> <li>to be able to carry out basic tasks on a computer or hand-held device</li> </ul>
What you'll do:	Your day-to-day duties might include:
	comparing crime scene prints with those of suspects <ul> <li>scanning police fingerprint forms into the National Automated Fingerprint Identification System</li> </ul> comparing fingerprints against the National Fingerprint Database to produce a list of likely matches analysing prints and marks to uncover links between crime scenes eliminating prints found at the scene of people not under suspicion <ul> <li>classifying records and maintaining fingerprint databases</li> <li>preparing evidence statements and presenting evidence in court</li> </ul>
	<ul> <li>attending crime scenes to offer specialist advice</li> </ul> getting fingerprint samples from the deceased at the morgue
What you'll earn:	£16,000 Starter to £35,000 Experienced
Working hours, patterns and	42-44 hours per week
environment:	evenings / weekends / bank holidays on a rota
	You could work in a laboratory.     Your working environment may be emotionally demanding
	Your working environment may be emotionally demanding.

Career path and progression:	With experience you could become a scenes of crime officer (SOCO).
	With further training you could move into forensic science or become a criminal intelligence officer.